

SHADOWS.

[Written for THE ASTORIAN.]

Sitting now I watch a shadow, darkly pictured on the wall,
And unto my saddened memory, earlier scenes it doth recall,
O ye days, ye days of childhood! when a shadow could affright,
As it sometimes ran before me, sometimes chased me in the flight.

Hastening to escape the shadows; rushed I into man's estate,
But the shadows, ever faithful, ever on my footsteps wait;
'Till methought that pain, or pleasure, whensoever they befall,
Wherever we may meet them, are but shadows, one and all.

Hurriedly I reached the noonday, when the sun just overhead
Chased away the darksome shadows; for a time they all had fled,
Then life's sun began to lower, slowly sinking down to rest,
Now, by shadows stretching longer, more than ever I'm oppressed.

Soon I'll meet another shadow, this the Prince of shadows all,
And the king of earthly terrors, but, oh, why should it appal?
For this awful, awful shadow, open for us the gates of light:
Leads us to a home eternal, where no shadow is, or night.

Sec. 1. That in order to provide for the payment of the outstanding indebtedness of the city of Astoria, there be and is hereby authorized to be issued three hundred and thirty bonds in the sum of fifty dollars each, said bonds to be payable on or before the 1st day of July, 1889, each of said bonds to bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually.
